BATM awarded cyber security contract by a European government
Chosen as leading supplier to provide cyber monitoring and detection under proof-of-concept programme for a new government customer

BATM Advanced Communications Limited (LSE: BVC), a leading provider of real-time technologies for networking solutions and medical laboratory systems, is pleased to announce that its Celare subsidiary, a cyber security business within the Group’s Networking & Cyber division, has been awarded a proof-of-concept (“POC”) contract to be the main supplier of cyber monitoring and detection systems for a European country. Celare will commence the POC contract immediately and receive approximately US$350,000 upon completion, which is scheduled to be by the end of Q1 2018.

The POC has been granted by the defence agency of a European government. Celare will demonstrate its T-Sense solution for comprehensive security monitoring to detect and investigate suspicious network activity and threats. It will support complete security coverage and will deliver a combination of advanced software and hardware to collect, analyse and visualise network incidents. T-Sense provides a 24/7 network monitoring platform and facilitates advanced detection of cyber threats and attacks, thereby providing a sophisticated network security shield.

BATM believes that like other similar contracts won recently, following the successful completion of the POC phase, the customer will be in a position to award the Group a substantial contract for the delivery of its cyber security solutions.

Dr Zvi Marom, Chief Executive Officer of BATM, said: “We are delighted to be chosen by another government to install our cyber system as a cornerstone in their planning. We believe that cyber solutions will be an essential element in every country and in all corporates for years to come, and we are gearing up to be a significant player in this market.”
